The Catwalk Bar at the Berlin Marriott Hotel... where every supermodel wants to be seen this season

The new Catwalk Bar at the Berlin Marriott Hotel is rapidly gaining a reputation as the hottest new venue in the capital and as place where supermodels are always welcome. Of course you don't have to be a Naomi, Kate or Cindy to enjoy the Catwalk's glamorous celebration of haute couture, famous photographers and millionaire models, but the venue is guaranteed to be a runway success with dedicated followers of fashion.

The concept was created by super couturier Michael Michalsky who has conceived every tiny prêt-à-porter detail from the classic Chaplin blazers of the barmen to the black and white frock coats and jumpsuits of the evening staff. "The Catwalk Bar is the first venue in the heart of Berlin to be inspired by fashion and I am delighted to have played such an important role in its creation," Michalsky says.

In addition to the gold, blackberry and chrome setting of the bar, the glamour of fashion informs every aspect of the Catwalk Bar from the artful photography on the walls and luxurious lounge couches to the carrara marble Louis XVI console table and the 'Hollywood producer' bar stools emblazoned with the names of fashion legends.

And like any haute couture collection the Catwalk provides plenty of variety to suit different moods, for example, the menu is divided into 'day' and 'night'. During the day supermodel-friendly low-carb and zero-carb lunches are served, while at night lounge music, imaginative cocktails and fanciful food such as pumpkin soup with gin take centre stage. "Our aim is to create an avant garde atmosphere that will really resonate with the fashion scene," says Thomas Guss, General Manager of the Berlin Marriott Hotel.

* For fashion lovers who want to bring a little Catwalk Bar glamour into their own homes it is possible to order a range of exclusive accessories such as personalized Hollywood-style bar stools... it's what dedicated fashionistas are ordering this season...
