The Polo Club steak house of the Marriott Moscow Royal Aurora was announced as the best hotel restaurant of 2010 at the Time Out Moscow annual Menu and Bill award ceremony.

Moscow, February 28, 2011

On February 24, 2011 the Time Out Moscow annual award ceremony, Russian equivalent of the TimeOut Eating & Drinking award, announced the original steak house Polo Club at the 5*star Marriott Moscow Royal Aurora, “The Best Hotel Restaurant of the Year”. The final decision was taken by a panel of independent restaurant experts.

“When we modified the concept of our Polo Club restaurant last year we had a simple vision - to have the best restaurant in Moscow, in the classic tradition of an upscale American Steak House, says General Manager Bert Fol.

“The Time Out award, which is one of the most prestigious awards in the Moscow restaurant scene, proves that we made the right decision.”

Polo Club is located on the second floor of the Marriott Moscow Royal Aurora. From its opening in January 1999, the restaurant has built a very good reputation among Moscow gourmets. Varied menus offered modern dishes of international cuisine with the highlight of the restaurant always being the outstanding quality of steaks served.

With the revamped concept of last year, the authentic steakhouse experience has arrived. Offering tender hand-cut selections of dry-aged American prime beef and of fine-grain fed Australian Wagyu beef with a superb texture, grilled to perfection; Executive Chef Thomas Koessler, together with his team, leave no stone unturned in the pursuit of serving the most tender full flavored steaks in town.

Complementing the wonderful range of steaks are classic seafood and fish dishes as well as an extensive range of salads, all prepared with the highest quality, seasonal ingredients.

Thomas Koessler, the Executive chef and Food and Beverage Manager arrived at the hotel six years ago, and the restaurant's success is in no small part due to his constant quest for perfection.

"I like simple food but the ingredients should be of excellent quality, only then can you achieve an outstanding result. That's what we have here and that's what our guests expect and consistently receive," says Thomas.

"It is truly inspiring to be recognized by the Time Out award. The Moscow restaurant scene is full of excellent restaurants and their clients are spoilt for choice. It makes this recognition even more rewarding."

It was the sixth Time Out Menu and Bill Award ceremony, which exists since 2006. The process of nomination in 12 categories, each of 5-10 nominees, was done in two steps. First the visitors of the participating restaurants were voting online on the Time Out website. Then restaurant experts chose the best restaurant in each nomination.

The Polo Club is located on the second floor of the Marriott Moscow Royal Aurora.
