

Sports Fanatics Love Oakland, California

When visiting Oakland, California, be sure to take advantage of the many sporting events the city has to offer. Whether its baseball, basketball, or football, Oakland has got you covered. With so many teams in one area, you're sure to catch a game or two no matter what time of year you visit.

The Oracle Arena is home to the Oakland Raiders and houses a vivacious 60,000+ fans. Beware of the "Black Hole," a daunting area of the arena dubbed so for serious Raiders fans only. Covering sections 104, 105, 106 and 107, the fans in this section are sure to cause an uproar!

The Oakland A's share the Oracle Arena with the Raiders as well. Though many of the upper deck seats are covered with tarp and not available for baseball season, tickets for the upper deck just behind home plate sell for $35 and include an "All You Can Eat" bonus.

For a chance to see the Golden State Warriors play a home game, you'll have to stick around the Oracle Arena in Oakland, California. The Warriors have played at this venue since 1966. This team has been around for decades and famous past players include Wilt Chamberlin, Nate Thurmond, and Rick Barry.

Just a quick ferry ride to San Francisco will bring you to AT&T Park to see the San Francisco Giants play some great American baseball. The team's games held in AT&T Park offer incredible views of San Francisco and a classic design that was awarded 2008 Sports Facility of the Year.
