BRIDGEWATER, NJ (July 29, 2009) – Tbones Steakhouse at the Bridgewater Marriott hotel in New Jersey, an upscale fine dining restaurant combining authentic Tuscan cuisine with a classic American ambiance, is proud to offer foodies — and those looking for a unique venue for a small corporate dinner or private party — the opportunity for an exclusive indulgence: The Chef’s Table.

Providing not only an exquisite gourmet experience, but also a front row seat in the kitchen, the Chef’s Table at Tbones restaurant in New Jersey is one of the hottest new dining opportunities in the Central New Jersey area!

Executive Chef Kevin Goodchild and Chef de Cuisine William Downes have decided to incorporate the Chef’s Table concept into their Bridgewater, NJ steak house restaurant. The Chef’s Table concept dates back to medieval times when royalty would invite their guests to attend dinner parties in the kitchen so they could interact with the king’s personal chef as he prepared their meals. At the Tbones Steakhouse restaurant, the Chef’s Table is located directly in the kitchen and seats up to eight guests.

Diners have a hand in designing the menu, if they so choose, which is prepared, in full view, by the Tbones chefs. Whether guests are looking to entertain clients, host a special birthday party or celebration, or have a romantic dinner for two they can do so with an incredible meal and even have wines perfectly paired to their menu if they so choose. The Chef’s Table in Bridgewater, New Jersey will always feature organic, natural, and local foods, which are sure to stimulate the senses and please the palate.

Reservations for the Chef’s Table at Tbones Steakhouse restaurant in New Jersey are required in advance and may be made by calling 1-908-482-0007 or emailing tbones@marriott.com.
