MEETING FACILITIES

The Princeton Marriott Hotel and Conference Center at Forrestal is certified by the International Association of Conference Centers (IACC). IACC certified conference centers have to meet stringent criteria (including dedicated conference space, availability of meeting packages, ergonomic design of the conference facilities, availability of professional staff, food and beverage requirements, guest room and technology requirements, etc.) and are therefore set apart from other meeting facilities.

Since the property was initially designed and constructed to be a conference center, the overall layout and flow is very conducive to group learning and accomplishment. With all meeting space situated on one floor in a separate wing connected to the hotel, there are an abundance of breakout rooms clustered near larger conference rooms which allow for a wide variety of meeting types. No matter what the group size, privacy is attainable. There are solid walls with tackable wall surfaces and separate entrances to the meeting rooms as well as access to outdoor common areas, refreshment kiosks where attendees can grab a coffee, juice, or quick snack any time throughout the meeting day, providing the flexibility conference attendees desire.

Since Marriott International assumed management of the property, the hotel has undergone a $15 million renovation program that includes new meeting tables with ergonomic chairs, upgraded conference amenities, wireless internet access in all meeting areas, plush new carpeting, new wall coverings, and brighter new finishes. All of the rooms and public areas feature windows to provide a generous amount of natural daylight and views of the grounds and woodland setting.

Overall, the property features a total of 32 meeting rooms with 35,000 square feet of meeting space. The largest room is the Alexander Room at 5,000 square feet with a maximum seating capacity of 400.

Conference dining, the Spa, and other recreational facilities are in a separate portion of the building so meetings are distraction free.

What sets the Princeton Marriott Hotel and Conference Center at Forrestal apart with regard to meetings is its ability to provide a comfortable and relaxing environment for maximum productivity, with personalized meeting services and sophisticated metro technology.
